FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., December 3, 2009 – BOSH Global Services, formerly UAV Communications, Inc., received the 2009 Virginia Asian Chamber of Commerce (VACC) Vanguard Award at the Chamber’s First Annual Virginia Asian Chamber Gala last night. This award recognizes the Asian Pacific American-owned business in Virginia that best demonstrates innovation in business practices, problem resolution, products and services.

“The Virginia Asian Chamber of Commerce Award Selection Committee was impressed by [BOSH’s] development, uniqueness, contribution to technology, and community service,” VACC Chairman Tinh Duc Phan said in a letter. Robert Fitzgerald, President of BOSH Global Services, accepted the award alongside his wife, Shelly Fitzgerald. Also in attendance from BOSH were Engineering Manager Steve Randolph and his wife Pat, and Jim Brennan, Controller.

BOSH Global Services is a veteran-owned, Small Business Administration (SBA)-certified 8(a) Small Disadvantaged Business (SDB) committed to transforming unmanned systems operations. The company offers integrated turnkey services including engineering, project planning, materiel acquisition, system installation, training, logistics support and management of unmanned systems, command and control, and Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance (ISR) systems operations and support around the clock.
